Terms and Conditions

Article 1: Transfer of Copyright

Upon publication of the submitted work (hereinafter referred to as "the Work") in our publication platform, all copyright ownership shall be permanently and irrevocably conveyed to Scribium. This transfer encompasses comprehensive and exclusive privileges to digitally archive, replicate, and disseminate the Work in its entirety or in portions across global territories. These rights include but are not limited to: publication rights, reprint authorization, translation privileges, photographic duplication, microform conversion, digital format distribution (both online and offline), and any comparable reproduction methods.

Article 2: Author Warranties and Representations

The signatory hereby affirms and guarantees that the submitted Work represents original scholarship that has not been previously disseminated in identical, partial, or substantially similar formats elsewhere. The signatory confirms sole authorship of the Work, excluding materials explicitly attributed to their original sources with appropriate copyright permissions obtained where necessary. Furthermore, the signatory possesses complete authority to submit this Work and transfer copyright privileges to Scribium. The signatory certifies that no prior rights assignments or grants have been made to other individuals, publishing entities, or organizations regarding this Work. The signatory warrants that the Work constitutes copyrightable material and does not violate any existing privacy rights, copyright protections, trademark registrations, patent rights, statutory provisions, or proprietary interests of third parties. Additionally, the signatory guarantees that the Work contains no infringing, defamatory, obscene, or otherwise unlawful content, and confirms that all necessary permissions have been secured from copyright holders or their legal representatives when incorporating quoted text passages, tables, data, figures, or other copyrighted materials.

Article 3: Third-Party Copyright Obligations

When the Work incorporates materials under third-party copyright protection, the Author bears sole responsibility for securing appropriate permissions from copyright owners before submission and subsequent publication. The signatory commits to providing such permissions to Scribium upon demand. The signatory further agrees to defend, indemnify, and hold Scribium harmless against any losses, expenses, or damages resulting from third-party copyright infringement claims or breaches of the aforementioned warranties connected to the Work's publication.

Article 4: Co-Author Acknowledgment and Responsibility

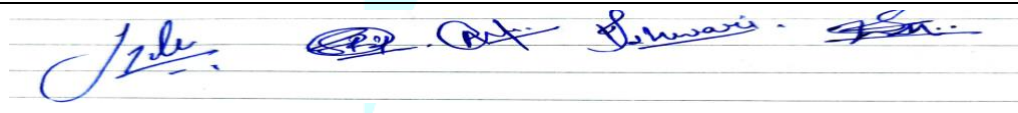

The signatory confirms that all individuals designated as co-authors have been informed of this copyright submission and have consented to their inclusion. By signing, the undersigned assumes full responsibility for releasing this material on behalf of all co-authors. The signatory acknowledges that all statements and viewpoints expressed in the Work represent the Authors' perspectives. Content responsibility rests entirely with the Authors, not with Scribium.

Article 5: Author Rights Retention

Authors maintain ownership of all proprietary rights excluding copyright, including patent rights. Authors preserve the privilege to reuse portions of the Work without charge in their future scholarly endeavors, such as books, lectures, and presentations across all media formats, contingent upon proper crediting of Scribium's publication and prominent inclusion of relevant copyright notices. Authors may post the Work on personal websites and publicly accessible institutional servers, restricted to non-commercial access and personal use by others, with mandatory prominent display of "©Scribium" to indicate Scribium's copyright ownership. For applications beyond these specified uses, Authors must seek Scribium's permission to reproduce or authorize reproduction of the Work or verbatim excerpts, including figures and tables. While Authors may reuse all or portions of the Work in subsequent publications, this privilege does not extend to authorizing third-party requests for reprinting, republishing, or similar reuse. Scribium maintains exclusive authority over all such third-party requests.

Article 6: Signature Requirements and Employment Considerations

This agreement requires execution by at least one Author who has obtained consent from all co-authors where applicable. When Authors are employed and have prepared the Work as part of their professional duties, initial rights to the Work belong to their employer. In such circumstances, Scribium assumes that the signatory possesses proper authorization from their employer and that the employer has agreed to all terms and conditions herein. The signatory acknowledges and accepts that Scribium holds complete and unconditional authority to publish, distribute, and reprint this Work across all formats and media platforms, thereby confirming acceptance of all stated terms and conditions.
